Seventy-five Killed and Many Injured by the Hurricane.

TO PROPERTY DAMAGE

The Storm Which Originated in Iowa Killed Outright and Others Are Injured in Various Ways-Loss of Property Estimated at $1,000,000.

clone indicate that the loss of life will be in the neighborhood of seventy-five while the injured will number several times as many. Some of those hart are expected to die and it is not unlikely that fully 100 persons will be numbered in the list of the cyclone's fury. The property loss is very heavy and it is almost impossible at this time to obtain snything more than rough estimates of the damage

As indicated in last night's dispatches, the storm originated near Emmetsburg, Ia., and passed east and north to northern Iowa and southern Minnesots, finally passing over into Wisconsin. No reports of serious damage have been received from this section and the fury of the elements seems to have been spent with the destruction of Spring Val-ley. Here four persons are dead, some severely burt, while the property loss is estimated at $85,000, the resi-dence portion of the town lying directly in the path of the cyclons. At Le Roy, lying southwest, four are dead and several fatally injured. The destruction of property amounts to $75,000. This is a heavy blow to the village for its chief business houses lie in ruins. FARM PROPERTY DESTROYED.

Five miles north of Osage, Iowa, six persons were killed and large num-ber hurt. The destruction of farm property is quite heavy, but no esti-mates have been made. East at Lowther, a town of about 100 souls, on the Chicago and Great Western, three persons were fatally burt, and the whole country for miles around laid in ruins. The loss in this vicinity will probably be not far from $100,000. Fifteen miles north of Mason City, lows, four persons were killed outright and as many more probably fatally hurt, while all the buildings struck are total wrecks, the loss being in the neighborbood of $50,000. West of Mason City, near Britt, two persons were killed outright, while north of this town some half dozen lost their lives. North of Algona seems to have been the scene of the greatest harvest of death, more persons being killed in Kossuth county than in any other one county through which the tornado passed. Nineteen funerals were held at Algona today. North of Emmetsburg, which seems to have been the point where the cy-clone first assumed dangerous proportions, two lives were crushed out.

As the storm traveled through the country and avoided villages and towns, the property loss is largely confined to farm builings and these being badly shattered render even an approximation of the loss impessible, but conservative estimates place the damage at not less that $1,000,000.

HOBO HIGHWAYMEN.

Bicycle Riders Are Held Up by Weary Williag.

NEWARK, N. J., Sept. 23.—Thirty tramps held up and attempted to rob a party of bicyclists who were returning from Rahway on Frelinghuysen avenue tonight. They blocked the roadway and roughly demanded money, sup-plementing their demand with dire threats in case of refusal. The wheelmen had dismounted and one of their number, drawing a revolver loaded only with blank cartridges, gave a loud command to "Fire" and blazed away point-blank at the would-be robbers. The latter, think-ing they had encountered Newark's force of bicycle policemen, beat a basty and inglorious retreat. Then the attacked party became the aggressors and captured five of the Coxey detachment and held them until the arrival of the police who were attracted by the shooting. When locked up they were recorded as Peter Lynch, George Moore, John Sicklim, David Welsh and Conrad Bender, all without a home except Lynch, who said he lives in New York.

The attempted robbery occurred in front of a dense woods, where it was found later the highwaymen had an elaborately furnished headquarters in most available."

HUNTING SWEATERS.

Factory Inspector Watchorn Investigates the System in Philadelphia.

HARRISBURG, Pa., Sept. 23 —An in-restigation of the awsating system as it exists in Philadelphia has just been made under the direction of Factory Inspector Watshorn, who has been try-to discover how many of these sweat shops are amenable to the factory inspection act. The special investigation just concluded shows a condition of things almost incredible in a city like Philadelphia. The investigation was made by Miss Mary O'Reilly, a deputy inspector, in whose district the exorable system is in full operation. Factory Inspector Watchorn accompanied Miss O'Reilly occasionally, and what he saw convinces him that the report does not exaggerate the situation.

He finds that 2,914 persons are employed in sweat shops at 643 places. Of this number but 52 places come under the jurisdiction of his department, which he urges as an increase of authority for the department in order that these places may be reached and the evil in some measure eradicated. Miss O'Reilly's report is comprehensive as to detail and describes many of the places visited and scenes which she witnessed. The system flourishes in the tenement district. Few Americans are employed in the work, the Russian Jews pro-dominating. The report speaks of crowded rooms, men, women and children huddled together sking out a miserable existence with their needles; men ashamed to say how little they were paid for the work they do; the wages are beggarly.

Miss O'Reilly describes the kind of goods manufactured by the half starved men and women and suggests the danger of a spread of disease from the sale of such clothing. She makes a strong plea for a division of home and work

Admiring Friends of the Iron Prince Visit Him at Varzin.

INCIDENTS OF THE RECEPTION

Though the Rain Poured Down in Torrents the Enthusiastic Friends of the Prince March to Varzin to Pay Their Respects-Choral Societies and Brass Bands Furnish Inspiring Music Upon the Occasion. Visitors.

BERLIN, Sept. 28, THE demonstration at Varzin today was marred by the heavy rain which fell throughout the day. The roads were hardly passable, but this did not deter the people from the vicinity from gathering about the railway station at Hammersmuhle to await the serival of the special trains. Seeing no sign of cessation of the storm, Prince Bismarck telegraphed from Varzin to tue committee: trouble yourselves to come to Varzin. It will be bad marching in the mud and rain. I will come and meet you at Hammersmuble. Councillor Von Gerlich put the question to the committee whether they should stay at Hammersmuhle or march to Varzin. After a few short speeches by members of the committee it was declared that Varzin was a sacred resort for Germans and that they must go there. At this point a great number of ladies, forming a separate battalion, part of them marching and part occupying harvest cars, formed a column and proceeded toward Varzin. The rest of the procession followed. As the head of the procession marched into the castle yard at Varzin the bands were playing and the processionists were singing "The Watch on the Vistula" and "The Watch on the Rhine." As far as possible the yard had been covered with boards and tarpaulins, but they did not suffice to keep off the rain.

AR VAL OF THE PROCESSION. Abou moon the procession entered the yard with ladies in front, each carrying a bouquet. Prince Bismarck ordered forms arranged for the ladies to sit on while he was speaking, and behind and around the ladies to see that they were comfortably seated. The battalions formed in good order each under a standard showing the district from which they were deputed. The banners were inscribed with a variety of mottoes, such as "Faithful" from Elbing and "True" from Gran-denz, etc. When Prince Bismarck made his appearance preparatory to speaking there was a prolonged chorus. Then the choral "Deutschland Ueber Allos" was sung and Baron Fourneck presented the ex-chancellor with an address adding- "Your are our ideal statesman. Our star is still old Bismarch." was a chorus of hurrahs at this and the band played "Ich Bin Ein Preuss." Prince Bismarek, before beginning his speech in reply to the address, drank a glass of branky and soda. Then cast-ing his eyes over the assemblage, he said: "I am greatly pleased with your visit, all the more so because the hot weather did not deter you from com-ing. None of you can longer hope, fear or expect anything from me, yet here you are. What leads us together is common love for the Fatherland. [Cheera.] It is a distinction that no state colleague of mine or no Prussian minister ever experienced. I claim nothing except that I have done my duty in the service of a master with whom I am bound in common faith toward the country."

After the prince's speech, Councillor Von Gerlich handed Princess Bis-marck an illuminated address, and the ladies presented her with bouquets. The procession then passed in review before Prince Bismrck, the bands playing and the choruses repeating "Ich Bin Ein Preuss." Prince Bismarck's chief ranger supplied the visttors with warm drinks, sandwiches and milk. The weather improved during the afternoon and the march back to Hammersmuhle was pleasanter than the march to Varzin.

DELIGHTFUL RECEPTION

Speaks in Terms of the Pleasant Greeting Accorded to Professor Hadyn Evans and Associates in the Land of Song-The First Concert Is Warmly Commended-Glad, However, That She Is an American.

Special Correspondence of The Tribune. ONT-Y-PRIDD, Sonth Wales, Sept. 13. TE are now in Pont-y-Pridd and having a glorious time. Owing to the lateness of the Ber-lin in getting into Southampton and to the temporary loss of the trunks of two of our party, we began our concerts a week later than we had promised, thereby disarranging several dates; but we are now in working order again. Our time is all filled up with concerts, one being given every We are staying at Pont ynight. Pridd as our headquarters, and go from there every evening to towns eight, ten or twelve miles distant where we give a concert and return to our hotel the same night, after having been royally entertained by the townsmen of the place in which the concert occurred. We are being very cordially received, to put it mildly. At the first concert, given at Treherbert, "Mr. Evans was greeted with cheer after cheer as he stepped upon the stage, and a very flattering reception was given to the rest of us, even before we opened our lips. But when the concert began the opening number was greeted with wild ap-plause, and nearly every number called forth enthusiastic recalls. We are one and all appreciated by the musical Weish people, and I should be the very last to complain of my reception, as it is perfectly beautiful. They are very kind to me, indeed, and I am surprised and delighted beyond measure by the warmth of my reception.

MISS ALLEN COMPLIMENTED. The playing of our violinist, Miss Allen, is everywhere commented on with the highest praise. Her audiences rise to the "highest pitch of enthusias I said before, we have nothing to signed by Secretary Greenam. complain of in the appreciation in which we are held. Tuesday night, Sept. 11, we performed at Pentre, and last night, Sept. 12, at Ferndale, and at each place our reception was only a repetition of the others.
We can see that the Welsh people are very much surprised at the excellence of the American voices. They knew, of course, that we could do something in the way of making music, but not much, you know. They expected us to be sort of uncouth and in-artistic about it, I fancy, as they take no pains whatever to conceal their unmixed surprise and pleasure in our work. We have met several of the leading Welshmen in the Rhondda valley and have been beautifully entertained by their wives and themselves. Tuesday night we were given a small reception at Tom Stevens' house, where we had a very pleasant time. Mr. Stevens will be remembered as the eader of the Rhondda Valley Male choir which carried off one of the principal prizes at the World's fair last summer, and afterward made such a successful concert tour in the States. He is geniality itself toward us, and every time I see him I have to think of that quotation we come across so often in the back part of the msgazines among the advertisements: "We are advertised by our loving friends," for he is always doing something thoughtful and lovely for ue. ANCIDENTS OF TRAVEL. Today there is a horse show at Cardiff and some of us are going down, as | company during their visit, t is not many miles from Pont-y-Pridd I expect to enjoy myself very much, as there is nothing I love better than a fine horse. There is much of interest in Pont-y-Pridd as well. On Sunday attended the English church here and hatened to the finest choral service I ever had the pleasure of hearing. was exquisite and in passing other churches all day Sunday, the congregational music of which I caught snatches was very fine in every instance. No wonder these people are fine chorus singers, as a couple of hundred of them will often sing a whole anthem without the support of any instrument and not deviate a single thread of a tone from the key.

This part of Wales is often called "the much-churched" country, on account of the myriads of which one meets in going around at all. There are churches every where, but when one stops to think about it, it is really not surprising, be-cause this valley is so densely popu-lated, that I dare say the number of churches is merely proportionate to the number of prople in the valley. It is said that there are at least 800,000 people in the Rhondda valley itself. WELSH SCENERY.

The last three evenings we gave concerts we had a man with a trap drive us from Pont-y-Pridd to our concert town, and the scenery through which we drove was simply magnificent. For wild, startling bits of scenery this country excels any locality through which I ever passed. The roads are, of course, faultless, as you know good roads are what England and Wales are famous for, and we roll easily along from one town to another, passing the numerous mines or pits, as the months of the mines are called, and going from one little valley into the next through scenery that is simply idyllic. Volumes could be written about the difference between their way of mining coal and ours, and the scenery, the old Druid temples which we saw, the famous Rocking Stone, and the wonderful bridge (Pont-y-Pridd), after which this wester town was named—all these last three, cooler, here at and near Pont y-Pridd-but I know you don't care to hear about it and if you do you can read it all in guide books much better than I can tell you.

There are so many amusing differences between being English and being American. If you are English you will call a telegram a "wire," as "Here is a wire for you, Miss," as the maid said to me this morning. They call a smoking room, a smoke-room, and instead of saying "Post no bills" they say "Stick no bills." A street car is a "tram," and by the way, let me say that the most antiquated street borse cars are going over here still. In fact there is but one electric road in big London itself, the whole city being traversed by means of cabs, horse-cars, busses, and of course, the underground railway.

DRINKING CUSTOMS. Over here every one drinks beer, or ale, or stout, not water. If you ask for a glass of water the maid does not understand you at all and brings you a glass of stont. If you send it away and repeat your request for a glass of water you wait and wait and getnothing. Coffee is horribly made over here. Tea is made very well, and as I am fond of coffee and dislike tea, but cannot get good coffee and will not take tea, I compromise on eccos, which is very well made in Wales. As a conquence of the general ale-stout-beer habit there are, of course, more public houses or inns than there are saloon in our country, and their names ar a constant source of amusement to one.
